

A Critical Essay:

This type of essay begins with an introduction section that includes a thesis—the main argument or point you want to make. The next several paragraphs consist of the main body of the essay—your reaction to the main points or arguments concerning your thesis, and support for your response to these arguments. This essay ends with a conclusion—restatement of your thesis and logical concluding remarks. For additional assistance see Doc Sharing for the KU Writing Center PDF.

Visit the Writing Center for further information on how to write a Critical Essay.